*Search for the Division Chief, Cardiovascular Medicine and Director, Sarver Heart Center
University of Arizona College of Medicine - Tucson
Tucson, Arizona*

The University of Arizona (UArizona) College of Medicine – Tucson invites applications and nominations for the position of Chief of the Division of Cardiovascular Medicine in the Department of Medicine and Director of Sarver Heart Center. The exciting context for this search is the tremendous opportunity for the Division and Sarver Heart Center to grow its presence and impact in Southern Arizona and beyond; expand an already strong cohort of faculty, fellows, students, and staff; augment and expand the research activities of Sarver Heart Center; and further strengthen and integrate the tripartite mission of the College.

The College of Medicine provides state-of-the-art programs in medical education, groundbreaking research opportunities, and leading-edge patient care. From an initial class of just 32 students in 1967, the College today has graduated more than 4,000 physicians. With 30 core faculty, the Division of Cardiovascular Medicine is a comprehensive academic clinical division with established community partnerships in a wide variety of areas, and research excellence driven, in particular, by Sarver Heart Center. Building on an established partnership with Banner Health, the fourth largest non-profit healthcare system in the U.S., the Division is well-positioned to expand its range of clinical services to include general and preventative cardiology, cardiac imaging, structural heart and interventional procedures, electrophysiology, heart failure treatment, cardiac transplant and cardiac intensive care.

Reporting to the Dean of the College of Medicine in their role as Director of Sarver Heart Center, and to the Chair of the Department of Medicine in their role as Chief of Cardiology, the incumbent will work collaboratively with the leaders of the College and Banner – University Medicine to further the tripartite mission of achieving excellence in clinical care, education, and individual and team-based research to position the department for continued growth through innovation. This individual will be a visionary, accomplished leader with demonstrated achievements in cardiological research and practice, and will be comfortable setting ambitious goals and strategy; they will practice transparent, collaborative leadership, and will drive a culture of mentorship, scholarship and innovation. With an eye for opportunity, the Chief will fulfill the department's priority to expand through innovative partnerships with community agencies, health-related organizations, and governmental entities, and through faculty recruitment and retention efforts that support the department's objectives.

To be successful, the Chief of Cardiology and Director of Sarver Heart Center will embrace and address the following opportunities and challenges, outlined below:

- Lead an impactful and competitive strategic, growth-oriented vision for all cardiovascular medicine activities in support of the College's tripartite mission;
- In collaboration with Banner Health, drive a successful clinical strategy that leverages the strength and assets of the University to drive growth;
- Driven by Sarver Heart Center, grow an interdisciplinary research portfolio that capitalizes on and complements the University's tremendous clinical and basic science assets;
- Recruit and retain world-class physicians, faculty, trainees and staff, and cultivate an ethos of mentorship and transparency across all division populations;

- Effectively promote the Division's activities with internal and external stakeholders, including university leadership, Banner Health executives, and patient communities in Tucson and throughout Arizona.
