Executive Vice President, UVMHN/President, UVMHN Medical Group/Senior Associate Dean for Clinical Affairs, Larner College of Medicine

Burlington, VT - University of Vermont Health Network (UVMHN) and The University of Vermont, Larner College of Medicine (LCOM) seek an authentic, talented physician leader to serve as its next Executive Vice President, UVMHN, President, UVMHN Medical Group (UVM MG), and Senior Associate Dean for Clinical Affairs, LCOM (role title abbreviated as “EVP”).

As a growing, regional health system anchored by a leading academic medical center, UVMHN has over 4,000 healthcare providers and $2.3 billion in annual net patient revenue. UVMHN is continuing its transformation to an integrated delivery system and is a national leader in value-based care. Leadership in continuing to advance physician and clinical integration through value-based care models is critical to the health system’s success.

This expansive, pivotal position presides over the growing medical group within UVMHN; serves as one of three Executive Vice Presidents reporting to UVMHN's President and CEO, John Brumsted, M.D.; and serves as Senior Associate Dean for Clinical Affairs at the LCOM, reporting to Dean Richard Page, M.D. The EVP will be responsible for shaping the overall strategies for the health network, a role structure that oversees Department Chairs; the faculty and community medical group structures (in partnership with the Dean) and evolving network service roles; and an inaugural UVMHN Chief Medical Officer who oversees all network hospital CMOs (in partnership with hospital presidents), this individual will have a substantial influence leading the clinical enterprise across the health network. This is a substantial leadership opportunity for a physician leader to advance the goals for an innovative, community-focused academic health system that is committed to its future as a population health-based organization.

This position requires an exceptionally gifted leader with extraordinary communication skills and authentic interpersonal skills who is able to build trusting relationships and places a focus on humility. While this leader will develop credibility by advancing goals, providing vision and demonstrating the necessary conviction to lead change, success will be determined by one's ability to develop trust through active listening; supporting others; demonstrating consistent, sustained visibility; and genuinely seeking to understand people, their perspectives and the environment, consistent with diversity, equity and inclusion goals and initiatives.

Interested parties can apply directly through the WittKieffer Candidate Portal, here, or by sending resumes, nominations, and inquiries to Paul Bohne, Tony Barbato, M.D., through the office of Jennifer Sonneland email: jsonneland@wittkieffer.com. All inquiries will be held in confidence.