

Maintaining Harmony: AI/AN Strategies for Wellness and Healing
28th Cross Cultural Medicine Workshop
April 23-26th, 2020
Crown Plaza Hotel
Albuquerque, NM

Who Should Attend

Cross Cultural Medicine Workshop (CCMW) is designed to provide physicians, medical students, hospital staff, counselors, program staff, and healthcare professionals a greater understanding of traditional American Indian/Alaska Native (AI/AN) healing practices and improve cultural communication between Native peoples and health professionals.

Objectives

- Understand Traditional healing practices and improve cultural communication between the American Indian/Alaska Native community and healthcare professionals.
- Analyze modern Western medical practices using evidence-informed Indigenous healing practices and traditions from around the world.
- Describe how culture influences both patients' and provider's expectations and decision making.
- Outline strategies and practices that can increase the healthcare provider's ability to conduct culturally-sensitive services.
