

Health Sciences Assistant/Associate Clinical Professor
University of California, Davis School of Medicine
Department of Family and Community Medicine

The University of California, Davis School of Medicine is recruiting for a full-time Assistant or Associate Professor in the Health Sciences Clinical Professor series in the Department of Family and Community Medicine.

The position will be expected to contribute with distinction in the areas of clinical care, teaching, mentoring of trainees, and University and public service. Responsibilities include direct inpatient and outpatient clinical care in all aspects of family medicine, including obstetrical care. Teaching is required and will include supervision of medical students, residents, and fellows in both inpatient and outpatients settings. The percent time devoted to clinical care, teaching, and mentoring of trainees will be negotiated with the Department Head

As the region's only academic health center, UC Davis Health is focused on discovering, applying, and sharing knowledge and providing the highest quality of care. UC Davis Health is a hub of innovation that encompasses UC Davis Medical Center, UC Davis School of Medicine, The Betty Irene Moore School of Nursing at UC Davis and UC Davis Medical Group. UC Davis and UC Davis Health also commit to inclusion excellence by advancing equity, diversity and inclusion in all that we do. We particularly encourage applications from members of historically underrepresented racial/ethnic groups, women, and individuals with disabilities, veterans, LGBTQ community members, and others who share in our vision to achieve a diverse and inclusive community. The UC Davis Medical Center has been recognized by the Human Rights Campaign Foundation, the nation's largest lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) organization, as a "Leader in LGBT Healthcare Equality" in its annual Healthcare Equality Index report for the seventh year in a row.

We serve an incredibly diverse population of urban and rural patients, with a focus on care of the under-served, and fully engage in the educational, research and service missions of the University of California.

Specific core duties, functions and responsibilities:

- Direct inpatient and outpatient clinical care in all aspects of family medicine, including obstetrical care
- Teaching is required and will include supervision of medical students, residents, and fellows in both inpatient and outpatients settings

The candidates must have the following qualifications:

- MD or DO degree
- Successful completion of an approved family medicine residency training program
- Demonstrated experience in the teaching of students and house staff
- Ability to obtain a Medical License in the State of California
- Be Board certified or board eligible in Family Medicine
- Recent outpatient clinical practice, including outpatient clinic, inpatient ward service and obstetrics
- Demonstrated community service
- Ability to work cooperatively and collegially within a diverse environment, with demonstrated experience mentoring women, people from ethnic/racial minority groups, students with disabilities, and other under-represented groups
- Ability to adhere to policies and procedures of the University

Qualified applicants should upload a curriculum vitae and statement of teaching to <https://recruit.ucdavis.edu/apply/JPF02646>.

Statement of teaching should discuss experience teaching medical school students, mentoring residents, and providing inpatient and outpatient clinical care, including obstetrical care, and the names of three to five references with accurate contact information.

For full consideration, applications must be received by March 13, 2019. However, this position will remain open until filled through June 30, 2019.

This recruitment is conducted at the assistant or associate rank. The resulting hire will be at the assistant or associate rank, regardless of the proposed appointee's qualifications.
