THE WARREN ALPERT MEDICAL SCHOOL

Search for the
Associate Dean of Medicine
Program in Liberal Medical Education

The Warren Alpert Medical School (WAMS) in the Division of Biology and Medicine at Brown University invites applications and nominations for the position of Associate Dean of Medicine for the Program in Liberal Medical Education (PLME). This eight-year, highly selective combined baccalaureate-MD program matriculates 50-60 outstanding undergraduate applicants each year who, after earning their undergraduate degree from the University, advance on to the Medical School. Intensive academic advising and the development of a personalized Educational Plan enable PLME students to pursue their own academic interests in preparation for a career as a physician while also developing personal and professional attributes to lead a healthy, balanced life. The PLME accounts for a significant number of enrolled students to WAMS and is a major pipeline for students who are underrepresented in medicine (URiM). It is designed to develop humanistic, socially conscious, and scientifically superb physicians.

This is a rare opportunity for an academic medicine leader to manage and advance a premier combined baccalaureate-MD medical program. The successful candidate will possess an exemplary track record of program management and a firm grasp of the emerging challenges and opportunities in medical education. The Associate Dean must be an experienced and committed leader, advisor, and collaborator who furthers Brown's history of and commitment to excellence in undergraduate and medical education. The next Associate Dean will be a passionate mentor dedicated to supporting students throughout their journey in PLME. Of critical importance to WAMS, the Associate Dean must be wholly committed to the values of diversity, inclusion, and antiracism in medical education, including a keen awareness of the impact of health disparities on underrepresented communities. The successful candidate must bring uncompromising commitment to the wellness and well-being of students themselves with a desire for creating an optimal learning environment and guiding students throughout the continuum of their educational and professional careers. The Associate Dean must have an ethos that incorporates advocacy, compassion, and engagement, establishing credibility and confidence among all students.
